[1/1] Request for Statement of Events | WorkCover Claim: S23LW142013

Subject: Request for Statement of Events | WorkCover Claim: S23LW142013

Good morning Cory,

Thank you for taking the time to speak with me today. As we discussed, in order to make a decision on your claim I will need you to detail the factors or events which caused your injury by providing a Statement of Events along with any supporting documentation.

So that a timely decision can be made on your claim please provide your statement by close of business 9 July 2024.

On review of the medical certificate provided by Dr Peter Hawes the causative factors to your injury are related to:

- Ongoing breaking of workplace rules by bosses, victimizing him

Keep in mind that I will rely on the information provided to me by yourself and your employer in deciding your claim and the legislation requires that you provide evidence of your injury and its cause. This is called 'onus of proof', and when this is not sufficiently met a claim is unable to be accepted. As such, if you have any factual evidence which can serve to substantiate your claim

I invite you to please send this through along with your statement.

I understand there's a lot to take in here, but what I would like you to keep in mind is that your Statement of Events is essentially your version of the events which have caused your injury, and it does not need to be exhaustive. I've included some information below that may assist you in compiling your statement.

If you need more time to organise your statement, please contact me on 07 3006 8493.

Kind regards,

The Claim Process

It is important that you understand the process of how WorkCover will assess your claim and what your obligations are during this process.

Psychological injury claims usually follow the following three stages:

1. Submission of Nominated Factors:

This is where you provide substantiating information to WorkCover regarding the recent and significant events that you and your treating medical team attribute as the cause for you to seek treatment. The information provided at this stage provides the substantive grounds for your application.

2. Employers Response:

WorkCover provides your nominated factors to your employer for them to respond to. This stage generally takes 5 business days but can extend longer depending on the investigations being completed.

3. Natural Justice:

After your employer's response is received it will be passed on to you. The purpose of this stage is to provide you with an opportunity to review all information received from your employer. This is also a final opportunity to provide WorkCover with any further evidence that you wished to have considered as part of your application.

After this I will review your claim and all of the information available and make a decision as to whether or not your claim is acceptable under the legislation.

The claim process can take up to 20 business days, but should there be a delay meaning that it will take longer, I will send a letter outlining the reasons for this delay.

For further information on how your claim is determined please refer to the WorkCover website

If you wish to watch a video on the claim process please refer to the Claim process webpage .

Providing your Statement

When compiling your Statement of Events it's important that you keep in mind the following;

1. Be Concise

o Whilst it is understood that events or matters can build up over an extended period of time, for the purpose of nominating your factors, it is best to focus on the most recent and significant events that caused you to seek treatment from your doctor.? If you feel that it is important to mention or provide a history or background information as context for me to consider, please provide this on a separate document titled as ?History?.

o When providing the statement, you can use dot points or number the events as they occurred in chronological order.

o Be specific in what the event is that you are claiming for.? For example, simply saying ?Bullied by manager over a period of time? is not sufficient.? You will need to clarify what has occurred, who was involved, when the event occurred including approximate dates and times, who witnessed the event, if the event was reported and to whom.

2. Stick to The Facts

o It is best to only state the facts of what has occurred, stick to the ?Who, What, When, and Where? of what has happened.

o Your personal reaction to an event is not necessary to include in your statement.

o Your statement will be supplied to your employer for response so it is important that it remain as factual as possible.

3. Direct Involvement

o I will only be able to consider what has happened to? you ?and not other staff at the workplace.?Whilst you may feel that other staff have experienced similar events or can provide evidence to show a workplace culture or past behaviour, this is not sufficient to support that an event has occurred to? you .

o In your statement it is best to stick to the events that involve you directly.

4. Support Your Statement

o In making a decision on your claim I will rely on the information provided to me by yourself and your employer.

o The legislation requires that you, as the person submitting a WorkCover claim, provide proof of your injury and its cause. This is called ?onus of proof?, and when this is not sufficiently met a claim is unable to be accepted.

o It is important to provide any additional factual documentation that can support that the events you are nominating have occurred in the manner described.

o Evidence should be supplied at the time you nominate your factors, however you are not restricted and you can provide evidence at any time during the claim process.

Evidence

Some examples of the information you may provide as evidence can be:

· Witness statements or witness contact details for people who are able to provide direct or firsthand knowledge of the event/s nominated

· Workplace policies and procedures related to the event/s and circumstances raised

· Internal investigation reports

· Time sheets, rosters, or role descriptions

· Other information that may support the claim (such as phone records, incident reports, travel logs etc.)

· While consideration can be paid to diary or file notes made by yourself in most instances these usually cannot be relied upon to adequately substantiate events.

Some examples of information not considered as evidence are:

· Character statements

· Indirect evidence i.e. Witnesses who heard about the event from another person after it took place, · Hearsay, rumour or gossip.

Exclusions

Each claim is decided based on the specific circumstances and information obtained. When making a decision, your WorkCover representative will apply criteria and exclusions as outlined in the Act. It is important to be aware that the Act specifically excludes a psychological injury that has arisen from ?reasonable management action? taken in a reasonable way by an employer in connection with a worker's employment.

?Reasonable management action? does not need to be perfect or above criticism. If management action is considered to have been reasonable, we are unable to accept the claim.

The claims process can be a distressing time for you, and some claims may take more than 20 business days. Please see below the following avenues that may be able to assist and support you during this time.

Subject: Request for Statement of Events | WorkCover Claim: S23LW142013

Good morning Cory,

Thank you for taking the time to speak with me today. As we discussed, in order to make a decision on your claim I will need you to detail the factors or events which caused your injury by providing a Statement of Events along with any supporting documentation.

So that a timely decision can be made on your claim please provide your statement by close of business 9 July 2024.

On review of the medical certificate provided by Dr Peter Hawes the causative factors to your injury are related to:

- Ongoing breaking of workplace rules by bosses, victimizing him

Keep in mind that I will rely on the information provided to me by yourself and your employer in deciding your claim and the legislation requires that you provide evidence of your injury and its cause. This is called 'onus of proof', and when this is not sufficiently met a claim is unable to be accepted. As such, if you have any factual evidence which can serve to substantiate your claim

I invite you to please send this through along with your statement.

I understand there's a lot to take in here, but what I would like you to keep in mind is that your Statement of Events is essentially your version of the events which have caused your injury, and it does not need to be exhaustive. I've included some information below that may assist you in compiling your statement.

If you need more time to organise your statement, please contact me on 07 3006 8493.

Kind regards,

The Claim Process

It is important that you understand the process of how WorkCover will assess your claim and what your obligations are during this process.

Psychological injury claims usually follow the following three stages:

1. Submission of Nominated Factors:

This is where you provide substantiating information to WorkCover regarding the recent and significant events that you and your treating medical team attribute as the cause for you to seek treatment. The information provided at this stage provides the substantive grounds for your application.

2. Employers Response:

WorkCover provides your nominated factors to your employer for them to respond to. This stage generally takes 5 business days but can extend longer depending on the investigations being completed.

3. Natural Justice:

After your employer's response is received it will be passed on to you. The purpose of this stage is to provide you with an opportunity to review all information received from your employer. This is also a final opportunity to provide WorkCover with any further evidence that you wished to have considered as part of your application.

After this I will review your claim and all of the information available and make a decision as to whether or not your claim is acceptable under the legislation.

The claim process can take up to 20 business days, but should there be a delay meaning that it will take longer, I will send a letter outlining the reasons for this delay.

For further information on how your claim is determined please refer to the WorkCover website

If you wish to watch a video on the claim process please refer to the Claim process webpage .

Providing your Statement

When compiling your Statement of Events it's important that you keep in mind the following;

1. Be Concise

o Whilst it is understood that events or matters can build up over an extended period of time, for the purpose of nominating your factors, it is best to focus on the most recent and significant events that caused you to seek treatment from your doctor.? If you feel that it is important to mention or provide a history or background information as context for me to consider, please provide this on a separate document titled as ?History?.

o When providing the statement, you can use dot points or number the events as they occurred in chronological order.

o Be specific in what the event is that you are claiming for.? For example, simply saying ?Bullied by manager over a period of time? is not sufficient.? You will need to clarify what has occurred, who was involved, when the event occurred including approximate dates and times, who witnessed the event, if the event was reported and to whom.

2. Stick to The Facts

o It is best to only state the facts of what has occurred, stick to the ?Who, What, When, and Where? of what has happened.

o Your personal reaction to an event is not necessary to include in your statement.

o Your statement will be supplied to your employer for response so it is important that it remain as factual as possible.

3. Direct Involvement

o I will only be able to consider what has happened to? you ?and not other staff at the workplace.?Whilst you may feel that other staff have experienced similar events or can provide evidence to show a workplace culture or past behaviour, this is not sufficient to support that an event has occurred to? you .

o In your statement it is best to stick to the events that involve you directly.

4. Support Your Statement

o In making a decision on your claim I will rely on the information provided to me by yourself and your employer.

o The legislation requires that you, as the person submitting a WorkCover claim, provide proof of your injury and its cause. This is called ?onus of proof?, and when this is not sufficiently met a claim is unable to be accepted.

o It is important to provide any additional factual documentation that can support that the events you are nominating have occurred in the manner described.

o Evidence should be supplied at the time you nominate your factors, however you are not restricted and you can provide evidence at any time during the claim process.

Evidence

Some examples of the information you may provide as evidence can be:

· Witness statements or witness contact details for people who are able to provide direct or firsthand knowledge of the event/s nominated

· Workplace policies and procedures related to the event/s and circumstances raised

· Internal investigation reports

· Time sheets, rosters, or role descriptions

· Other information that may support the claim (such as phone records, incident reports, travel logs etc.)

· While consideration can be paid to diary or file notes made by yourself in most instances these usually cannot be relied upon to adequately substantiate events.

Some examples of information not considered as evidence are:

· Character statements

- Indirect evidence i.e. Witnesses who heard about the event from another person after it took place,

- Hearsay, rumour or gossip.

Exclusions

Each claim is decided based on the specific circumstances and information obtained. When making a decision, your WorkCover representative will apply criteria and exclusions as outlined in the Act. It is important to be aware that the Act specifically excludes a psychological injury that has arisen from 'reasonable management action' taken in a reasonable way by an employer in connection with a worker's employment.

'Reasonable management action' does not need to be perfect or above criticism. If management action is considered to have been reasonable, we are unable to accept the claim.

Support

The claims process can be a distressing time for you, and some claims may take more than 20 business days. Please see below the following avenues that may be able to assist and support you during this time.

Please remember WorkCover Queensland will fund for your psychological medical treatment whilst the claim is pending (GP, psychologist, psychiatrist).

Hi Amy,

I apologize for the length, but this 'overview' ended up being 10 pages to thoroughly explain the ongoing work issues and experiences that have progressively developed.

I wasn't entirely sure what you were looking for, so I documented various events from the past year up to today.

Unfortunately, I had to write this on my phone due to my laptop being in for repairs. I'll attach all the supporting evidence, which has taken some time to compile.

Kind regards,

Hi Amy,

I apologize for the delay in my response. I want to share that I have been struggling with the toll this situation has taken on me. The accusations of being combative while trying to report wrongdoing have adversely affected my mental well-being. This is a psychological effect; sustained and that has developed over time, ultimately leading me to seek medical attention from my doctor. Due to this it was difficult to give an exact date of injury which I have mentioned to begin with.

I'm disappointed by the response I've received, and I believe that Human Resources should also be held accountable for this situation. My final effort to raise awareness involved notifying the Ethical Standards Department, which closed the case without conducting a thorough investigation within just 7 days. There was no data collection, such as cross-referencing computer logs or swipe access records related to the attendance of Chloe Taylor and Tammy Reece. It is concerning that no departmental changes have occurred since various reports over a year ago.

Moreover, as Chloe and Tammy have contributed to my injury, I have decided to distance myself from communication with them for the time being. I truly believe that our department makes a significant difference in patient care, and I generally enjoy my job and appreciate my colleagues.

I have attached letter 1. with further details and additional documentation that may assist you in your review. I will further attach letter 2 but would actually prefer if there was an option to come into your office directly to go over the case itself.

Kind regards,

Cory

Subject: Union Delegate

Following a series of complaints, I have attempted to contact our official union representative, Together Union, as well as another union that incorrectly identified itself as a representative (see attached).

Unfortunately, I was unsuccessful in my attempts. I then sought to inquire with our management regarding the current union delegate in the switchboard department, as Amanda Richie, the previous union delegate, left the switchboard due to workplace bullying and harassment within the department, for which Queensland Health took accountability. To the best of my knowledge, Amanda has not been the delegate since 2021.

As stipulated in the EB11 agreement (attached), a union representative is to be provided by Queensland Health for employees to raise their concerns.

I informed both Ms. Taylor and Ms. Reece of my situation, but they were unable to identify the current delegate, and we discussed the matter (attached).

Following our discussion, I offered to complete the necessary training to become the delegate (attached). It was agreed that a group email would be sent out, allowing everyone the opportunity to participate.

The group email was sent, and months later, Chloe verbally confirmed that no one had responded.

After receiving this verbal confirmation, I contacted the union myself to initiate the process (attached). Unfortunately, the department has taken no further action regarding my becoming the delegate or providing me with a union delegate to whom I could raise my concerns.

Hi Amy,

I have one additional letter I have been working on and will attach soon. It will outline how both Chloe Taylor and Tammy Reece while she was also filling the manager position give me the run around to have payments processed. I have received so much animosity claims that I'm combative and so much more over the past year. I just don't see how either Tammy or Chloe can make appropriate decisions that affect the workplace while not even attending it or having the work ethic to do so.

You are welcome to contact payroll to understand that the manager is in the designated position to approve and sign off on hours worked or missed payments. Employees don't simply contact Human Resources to have payments issued.

I have also previously and mistakenly written non-continuous worker however just as the previous manager Sandra Johnstone was a day worker both Chloe Taylor and Ellen Stibbard are also Day Workers only. The on-call function they have initiated for themselves does not mean they are now continuous shift employees. It is unfair that the employees claim either an overtime meal break or do not complete their hours appropriately. All employees in switchboard working a 24-hour rotational roster would be subject to fatigue and return to desk and is the only reason why continuous workers have a paid meal break.

Furthermore, I have attached letter 3. Please let me know if anything is missing but I believe it shows how any issues within the department raised have been addressed. It has never been a priority to address the actual issues within the department. Yesterday 28 th August 2024 after the 5 years I have been employed within the HIMMS area they have decided to ignore all issues and move the department to now be run by the Corporate Director. I am to assume so that Tammy Reece will take no more responsibility for her actions as both the Director and her acting Manager Period.

Regards,

Cory

Good Afternoon Cory,

Have read over the call notes onto the claim from WorkCover's discussion with the practice of Dr Karen Howe.

The practice is aware that you have access to treatment cost coverage through WorkCover as your claim is pending. Currently they have advised that the appointment is November WorkCover is unable to provide pre-approval or pre-coverage for any treatment expenses as liability is still pending.

You are welcome to refer costs to WorkCover for reimbursement that you have engaged in, we simply cannot provide pre-approval for treatment costs as in the event the claim is not one for acceptance the entitlement will cease on the day that you are notified.

If you have any further questions please reach out to your claims representative Amy.

Kind Regards,

Jack Cain

I am starting to feel a lot of financial hardship as the I really have had no assistance in a subject that has shut me down.

I know Amy mentioned mid-week that she would make the decision by today Friday.

Is that still something that might happen?

Dear recipient,

I have recently submitted a crime and corruption case against the director and the manager.

It is written in the law and the policy both entitlements and that employees are paid the appropriate amount.

Attached is further evidence of how difficult I find it to be paid. There is much more than this but to go on this factor alone would show that the abuse of power and bullying through not processing my leave actions to put me on leave without pay not by myself but by the manager withholding my entitlements fraud bullying wage theft referring me to HR for payments when the managers duty is to approve payments is both unethical and illegal practices none of which is stated to be of the workplace practices and procedures.

Furthermore, I have previously attached Ms Taylor's response regarding HR or payrolls emails teasing my payments stating that she is awaiting their response while they have CC me in the emails saying that they have emailed her. I am being bullied. My wages and income being withheld is a clear violation of any practice. That alone should provide with any necessary evidence of all else was disregarded.

It is clear that Queensland Health is liable and policies are not being followed.

work-cover could approve conditional payments and yet do not, I cannot even see someone to talk about the issues causing me further stress. Today I was notified I can't even book a future healthcare treatment which will delay my treatment once it is approved causing a delay when I eventually do have the ability to book an appointment.

Attached screenshots not gossip and straight from Human Resources.

Hi Amy,

Thank you for the update. I appreciate your response, although it took over a month to receive one last time.

Despite my difficulties in explaining myself, I did not delay this long.

While it was challenging for me to articulate my concerns, I assumed the Director, with their experience, would handle these situations adeptly. However, after reading the previous letter, I believe Estelle's response may lack integrity.

I am requesting an advance payment to be processed as soon as possible, as I am experiencing significant financial distress and hardship. This situation has only worsened over time.

I have attached screenshots from the Human Resources website showing instances where Chloe Taylor or HR closed my raised issues without notice, restricted my working entitlements, or failed to respond within agreed time frames. I have also been placed on leave without pay, despite never requesting it, forcing me to borrow money from my family. I should have received my leave payments during this period.

My debts have increased significantly, and I am now heavily reliant on my partner's income to get by. This is unfair, especially considering the bullying, ostracism, withheld entitlements, delayed payments, lack of responsiveness to workplace issues, union matters, limited employment opportunities, and rostering concerns I have faced. Additionally, the workplace is managed by underqualified individuals who do not adhere to the Hospital and Health Services Agreement of complete their duties or hours at work.

I believe every issue I have raised is covered by this the Hospital and Health Services agreement, which all employees are required to uphold. Furthermore, I was unaware of the amount of leave I had available to me but when recently logging into MyHr indicated in the screenshots, Chloe has actioned leave without pay. However, according to the Fair Work Act, employee benefits and entitlements must be guaranteed during the evaluation period of a work cover claim, which is currently in progress.

Regarding Estelle's comments, my injury is a latent one sustained over time at work, which eventually prevented me from functioning properly. My doctor has documented this, and I am willing to provide this information and a previous doctors letter that covers a visit to the clinic on the date of the claim.

Due to the malpractice, corruption, and fraudulent activities within the department, I have submitted a crime and corruption report to the commission (ref: 1724986358).

Please keep me informed of any further updates or developments.

Kind regards,

Cory

Hi Amy,

Thank you for the call. I am in disbelief regarding the breaches I have reported, including unfair work opportunities, directives given without consultation, and issues related to employment opportunities and entitlements.

Despite acknowledging a breach of rostering rules by allowing only 7 hours between shifts, my employer claims they provided 8 hours. This discrepancy means they have not paid the double rate for the next shift.

I have provided various payslips and referenced Section 23, illustrating how I am subjected to less favorable terms.

Additionally, you mentioned that HR closed my cases. I referred to entitlements over 5 years amounting to thousands of dollars, yet they closed the case without addressing or rectifying the grievances.

I am perplexed by how the evidence led to a conclusion without a proper investigation.

How could they close the case for my entitlements if I have not been paid or received any communication about it?

How has my employer provided evidence that my signature was not fraudulently applied to the document, especially when I have stated that I did not sign any payment documents?

If your role is not investigative, my employer needs to show proof of payment on the payslips I supplied and confirm that no payment was made.

How has my employer shown that jobs were advertised before management issued directives via email to me?

Evidence was not appropriately used in my case. The regulator can send the case back to Workcover for further review and provide fresh instructions before making a decision. It is possible that your decision has caused me further detriment.

The regulator can also overturn the decision entirely. If you believe the regulator will either overturn your decision or instruct an investigation, please consider this.

I would like to work with you to discuss this with your manager, review the case, and acknowledge my concerns.

If you genuinely believe I do not meet the legal requirements, I will accept your decision and proceed directly to the regulator and the law society.

Best regards,

Cory

Hi Amy,

I am writing regarding my cessation of employment as of October 9th, backdated to the day after your WorkCover decision.

Last week, I received an abandonment of employment letter stating there had been no correspondence from me and that you had not provided Queensland Health with three workers' capacity certificates, the latest dated October 6, 2024. The letter also states there was no evidence or valid reason for my absence and no approved leave.

Please confirm whether these documents have been submitted to Queensland Health. I have been advised there has been no correspondence and to return my access card within seven days. The executive director does not acknowledge any communication regarding my employment.

This email is sent during a QIR review of the decision application made two days following your decision and after my email indicating my intention to return to work following medical treatment.

Thank you for your prompt response.

Regards,
Cory
